Cebu using 'Imeldific' makeover for Asean summit

ASEAN FEVER has hit Cebu City, which hosts from Dec. 11 to 14, the 12th Summit of Leaders of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations. The center of the frenzy is the highly controversial Cebu International Convention Center, the summit's venue, which—depending on which side of the mainstream the Cebuans are—is either 90 percent done or nearly dead; it will not be finished on time.

CEBU CITY—WITH THE 12TH SUMMIT OF LEADERS of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations less than a month away, officials in charge of the preparations for the three-day conference here have found it necessary to window-dress a 10-hectare Manila de Queens City of the South and its environs.

One language chair in Marikina City described the hectic preparations as an "Imeldific strategy," that is, improve the foreign visitors and keep the city out of sight.

Traffic islands, barriers and unmovable those many years, became works of landscape art overnight and streets that had not seen asphalt overlays for years closed with new law.

The smell of paint is everywhere, even in the densely packed houses along the "coronational road" from the Mactan-Cebu International Airport to the summit's official residence and venues. Their roofs are now sporting a uniform white, green or blue to hide the old.

Asean addresses environment issues

By Krista K. Siro-Guisa
Inquirer Staff Writer

LAO-LAO CITY—ENVIRONMENT Ministers of the 10 members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) yesterday agreed to further enhance regional cooperation to protect the environment, protect biodiversity and address border problems such as forest fires and the illegal trade in wildlife.

In a City Declaration on Sustainable Development, adopted at the end of the two-day 13th Asean Ministerial Meeting on the Environment held at the Shuang-Gu's Marten Island Resort and Spa, the environmental ministers also expressed full support for the recent re-established Asian Centre for Biodiversity which is located in the Philippines.

The Marten meeting is a prelude to the 12th Asean Summit in December which will be held in Cebu.

In the declaration, the ministers agreed to pursue the listing of Asean Heritage Parks as way to manage the region's rich biological resources.

In the Philippines, there are four Asean Heritage Parks. The Mt. Apo National Park in Davao Oriental, the Mt. Apo National Park in Mindoro, the Puerto Princesa Subterranean River National Park in Palawan and the Tubbataha Reef National Park in Sulu.

The environment ministers also expressed serious concern over increasing transboundary air and water pollution caused by forest fires, particularly from Indonesia. A sub-regional forum on addressing transboundary air pollution issues from the fire, most affected countries, namely Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore and Thailand, was formed to address more closely the kind and extent from that source.

Singapore and Indonesia pledged US$500,000 each to start a "trade fund."

Another highlight of the City Declaration is the agreement to expedite in their countries the signing of a regional "framework agreement on access to, and fair and equitable distribution of, and the utilization of, biological and genetic resources, in order to sustainably manage the rich biological resources of the region."

During press briefing, Philippine Environment Secretary and conference chair Angelo Reyes cited the importance of covering the region's plants and animals, even the extinction of a species would have an adverse impact on the entire ecosystem.

"We asked the members of the forum to set up a network of forest reserves with an exchange of information and more coordination, including training and capacity-building during. 'We want to strengthen existing up a regional network,' Reyes said in a statement.

He noted that the City Declaration recognized the need to strengthen regional cooperation to effectively enforce laws and policies more to address such issues as the illegal trade in wildlife.

The Third Issue Area of the Environment Report 2006, a compilation of Asean country reports which will be presented during the summit, was launched during the meeting with a report from Myanmar biodiversity.

Talk of the Town

Ecolabelling

Editor: Juan N. Sarmiento Jr.

SMOGKESKING SPOWING BLACK CLOUDS AND FACTORIES DISGORING FETID wastewater into rivers and lakes are among the images that come to mind when we hear the word "pollution."

Like motorcarts, motor vehicles emit greenhouse gases that cause global warming, which, according to a former World Bank chief economist, could, in the next decade, cost the world up to $5.98 billion if governments fail to take bold action.

There are other sources of pollution. Fast food restaurants have been accused of choking our rivers with their ubiquitous plastic and Styrofoam packaging. Households also contribute to the pollution of our waterways. Items local government units have been dogged for their inadequate waste-disposal facilities.

These conditions led to initiatives that encourage manufacturers and end-users to contribute to environment-responsive programs worldwide. One such program is ecolabelling.

Ecolabelling is based on the ISO 14000 series on environmental standards for products and services. Manufacturers who declare the environmental credibility of their products in their own practice the first type of ecolabelling.

Those who submit their products for third-party verification practice the third type of ecolabelling. Their products are awarded seals of approval if found to have been manufactured using environmentally preferable materials and processes.

In the country, the National Ecolabelling Program is called Green Choice Philippines. It invited industry members, government agencies, members of the academe, environmentalists and consumer groups to become members of its pool of experts. They began drafting environmental product criteria and as guides in determining whether a product is environmentally preferable or not.

In date, they have approved environmental product criteria for laundry detergents, floor care products, packaging materials, household chemicals, automotive engine oils, fire extinguishers, crayons and crayons.

OR ORGANIZATION IS BORN FOR big industry to celebrate the things that have a low impact on the environment. It is a mission to minimize the National Ecolabelling Program will call the Green Choice Philippines.

In the third-year involvement in the program, we know that the first step in such process is to establish the environmental impact of our own products, our manufacturers and consumers.

Sustainability

One thing that has long been the water-tight seal in development is sustainability. It is an acronym for sustainability, which is the ability to meet the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs. It is a concept that is often used to describe the ability of a system to meet the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs.

Manufacturers who claim to be sustainable are often accused of being greenwashing. This is a term used to describe the practice of making false or misleading claims about the environmental benefits of a product or service.

Verification

Many companies, however, will claim that their products are sustainable. But how can we verify this? The answer is through verification. This is a process by which an independent third party checks the claims of a company to ensure that they are accurate.

The program is also intended to encourage consumers to buy products that are sustainable. This is a process by which an independent third party checks the claims of a company to ensure that they are accurate.

Environmental

Today, ecolabelling gives manufacturers the capacity to adapt environmental performance to their products. The program offers consumers the ability to choose products that are environmentally preferable. It also allows them to choose products that are environmentally preferable.

What are the benefits of ecolabelling? It allows consumers to make more informed choices about the products they buy. It also allows them to choose products that are environmentally preferable.

Secrecy

As a member of Green Choice Philippines, we are committed to the transparency of our products. We are committed to the transparency of our products. We are committed to the transparency of our products.

THESE DAYS, WHEN EVERYTHING IS GREEN, it is easy to see why the term "green" is so popular. It is a term that is often used to describe the ability of a system to meet the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs.

Sierra Madre blocks 'Queenie' punch

By Herman Bordado

THE SIERRA MADRE MOUNTAIN RANGE ONCE again played a role in preventing a super typhoon from tearing down half force on Cagayan Valley and the Cordillera region, weakening "Queenie" to typhoon level some two hours after it made landfall yesterday morning.

Meteador, Cag., weather branch chief of the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration, said the location that the mountain range occupies—between the Ilocos, Ibabai and Cagayan in northern Luzon, also caused the typhoon to lose momentum.

Meteador, however, "said that it was not so the tide of the storm was going to be so strong. We thought something was happening to the weather disturbance, but it may change its path. It may not go with a normal course with the path through Central Luzon," he added.

By 11 p.m., weather bulletin on Friday evening showed that Queenie, by then a super typhoon, was picking wind at about 100 kph, now to make landfall in Aurora province and move on a projected path toward provinces of Cagayan Valley and Ilocos Sur, he said.

At 10 p.m., it was already in Cagayan province, Meteador said. Queenie was now a super typhoon, he said.

The interaction of the Sierra Madre mountain and the north-east monsoon caused it to change its course," he said.

He added that the favorable winds also weakened the storm's disturbance to a typhoon with winds of just 100 kph maximum based on the August 11 air mass analysis.

By early 7 a.m., he informed the government of Central Luzon about the position of the typhoon. He added that he learned he was in contact before the typhoon in Ilocos Sur region.

"I said that it was a typhoon, it was a typhoon, it was a typhoon," he said.

The Power of Voice: How a few Seconds Can Change your Life

In our everyday lives, we experience moments big and small. These experiences would be more extraordinary had we the opportunity to share them with the people that we love. These people share these moments wherein a short call, the power of voice, truly all the difference.

"Papa, iinang tayo ng five points?"

Evento ni Ryan Suanes, 23 years old, student in Tandang Sora, Quezon City.

Maaliw na labat kami nakatayo ng tickets sa big game. Kayo siyempre namang maraming up to the minute updates yang mga kabarkada naming nasa bahay lang. Mahirap lang, masin sa ilang comments commentators paking sa amin. Ha pero sa may nagbabalik sayo sa hindi lang sa TV ginamod. Syempre random na random nila yang excitement namin sa look, kaya kaka pagana, parang nagmamod sa rin nila ng live yang leha. Subang sila pa dahil yang amaling naganap namin, mas mura pa sa text. Saby-saby na lang kami lumabas para i-catch up ang championship.

"Good night Papa, love you!"

Saliway ni Rene Labuyan, 31 years old, mga Marikina.

Lagi akong overtime sa trabaho. Gano talaga kailangan pagkapag ang educational plan ng buong ko. You lang masin ko sa kanya eh. Dohi din, may tradition sa kami. Pag ala-9 na ng gabi at nasa ospina pa ko, lalanag na siya salita gamit ang cell phone ni Min. Kabit sandak ko lang maging ang buong sa home at ni Lita, nakakalimutan ko ang pagod ng buong araw na trabaho. Sa ilang segundo na you, sandak ko ang dabilan kong buhat ako napagdagap gamit.

"Oh, mahal."

Evento ni Karen Aquino, 24 years old, mga Angeles, Pangasinan.

Descriptive talaga kang tarapito. Anniversary namin ni Don, pero hindi kami nakapag-celebrate kasi mas out of town company trip siya. So I just stayed at home waiting for his usual text telling me good night at matalaga na you. Imagine my surprise when I got a mysterious call from him, telling me to "Look outside my window". When I did, nagulat ako.

Nasa labat ako with two petals and candles scattered all over, holding up a sign saying "Will you marry me?". Some might say sa ang cherry man, pero ako, I found it sweet talaga. I know right then and there na he was the guy for me. So I called him up on his cell and said the two words that he wanted to hear.

Three different people with three different stories. Ryan, Rene and Karen were able to experience first hand the power of calls and short conversations that changed their lives forever. This is the real benefit that Globe Diya Sentimos Kada Segundo calls give: You pay only for every second used. A two second call is let her know that you miss her. "Love you, missuuuu!" is just 20 centenos. A three second call is tell him, "Haw, sandak mo na ko. Byy" just 30 centenos. Dahil sa Globe possible na ang mabilang tawag, mas mura sa text. May feelings pa. A true innovation ONLY from Globe.

According to Globe Prepaid Recall, Gene Tamasin, "It has always been Globe's commitment to provide the consumer with dependable services at affordable prices. We recognize the power of voice in the Filipino's life and it is our goal to enable our subscribers to share their special moments with their loved ones. Because after all, sa ilang segundo lang, pwede nang maghago ang mundo mo."

It's as easy as dialing 232 and the 10-digit Globe number.

So what are you waiting for? 1-232 na na.

"Posible bang masabi ang nararamdaman sa ilang salita?"

"Kuya, 'di tuloy ang kasal."

Posible po sa tawag-tingil!

WASHINGTON—SENIOR MILITARY LEADERS HAVE BEGUN A broad review of strategy in Iraq and other crisis areas in the Bush administration's campaign against terrorism, according to Pentagon officials.

In a closely held effort, Gen. Paul Hain, the chief of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has assembled a team of some of the military's top brass and some senior civilian leaders to take a fresh look at Iraq and Afghanistan, among other hot spots.

Hain and includes other senior military and civilian leaders. The team is expected to report back to the Joint Chiefs of Staff in the next few weeks.

Plans that have been discussed include increasing the size of the Iraq security forces, along with the American effort to train and equip them, and adjusting the use of the American forces in Iraq. Cupcakes that sell like hotcakes because of blogs

OWNED BY SOLE OWNER SONIA L. OUNGER did not have in mind: one spent at all for a marketing campaign or any press. Related products.

The blog did it for her. For free. "It was truly phenomenal, after my first delivery of cupcakes to a friend for my birthday party in November 2005, it all went right from there. A lot of people were asking where they could get those 'cupcakes' when I probably didn't know."

Ounger, who used to work for New York City's Magnolia Bakery and got back only in October 2005, admits that she did not have a marketing plan at all.

"Word got around that I have these cupcakes and most thing I know, the cupcakes were all ready being shared to blogs and people were asking for them," says Ounger.

Doing away with in-out shopping

IS A SOCIETY WHERE BEASTY products are a dime a dozen and commodities a dime a dozen? Not if you're almost every adult citizen in the nation, except those who resist in one of the hottest markets in the world: the beauty market. And even if you're not, you're still a part of it. The beauty market is a multi-billion dollar industry, and it's growing. It's a market that's not just about the products you use, but also about the experience you have when you use them. Retail entertainment. Marcionato is looking at the concept of "retail entertainment," which, she says, is quickly becoming a global trend, moving across various markets all over the world. The whole concept is built around giving shoppers the chance to really experience the products before they buy. So, many shops are now just to try the products on without having to make a purchase right then. In Manila, however, consumers can really try the store's various products, as they are always open to the public, and the products are always available. Designing woman

Fashion designer Monique Lhuillier now finds herself being compared to Carolina Herrera, Oscar de la Renta and Vera Wang, her own fashion icons

PLATINE
By the Staff

REGARDLESS WHETHER they are fashionistas or not, Filipinos have come close to the perfect dress days. One of them was Monique Lhuillier, born and bred in Cuba, is working a big name in the United States via her dreamy bridal gowns and figure-flattering evening wear.

In her class 12 years since she met husband Tom Hughes, a former man, opened a bridal boutique in Los Angeles which came her breakthrough moment. The designer has been compared to fashion legends Oscar de la Renta, Carolina Herrera and Vera Wang.

Although she admits such comparisons, Lhuillier is the first to admit she still has a long way to go to reach, much less surpass, the achievement of such designer icons, but of whom she is both a fan and—happy to be like.

Indeed, it's a far from quiet life, however. She says she is a workaholic, but the greatest of joys of her work is making it a social industry, she says. It is the reason why she is always smiling and laughing.

Her becoming a household name in the US especially among designers, Lhuillier credits her to her family's financial support and her own drive to succeed.

The public designer herself has become the preferred choice of a growing number of Hollywood stars, including Britney Spears, Kim Kardashian, Angelina Jolie, Sarah Jessica Parker, Jennifer Aniston, and others.

Her success has also led to her being named "Most Powerful Woman" by Forbes magazine. She has also been named "Most Powerful Woman" by Forbes magazine.

Lhuillier is not only a designer but also a businesswoman. She is the founder of her own company, Monique Lhuillier Inc., which is based in Los Angeles. She is also the founder of her own company, Monique Lhuillier Inc., which is based in Los Angeles.

Indeed, around with big names and so many other with whom—positive she never fails to credit to most designers—Lhuillier has taken what she learned at the Los Angeles Fashion Institute of Design and Merchandising as well as other fashion design schools.

And though she will share her hard-earned success with her family, she is equally proud of her own achievements. She is the founder of her own company, Monique Lhuillier Inc., which is based in Los Angeles.

Acquaintance lessons

According to basic feng shui principles, the location of your home can determine if you and your family will have a good life. If your surroundings are auspicious, then abundant luck will follow you and most of your wishes will come true as long as you live there.

This is because the natural environment is very powerful, as even if your intentions might suffer from frequent fluctuations, then negative impact would not be so significant. The best location, according to classical feng shui, is defined through the representation of celestial animals that refer mostly to elevated lands.

Black turtle hills are the mountains behind, which should ideally be north of the house. Green dragon hills are those on the left and, ideally, should be in the east. White tiger hills are those on the right side, ideally should be in the west. The best places should be in front, or the south.

The overall shape looks like an embrace, creating a life of ease and comfort.

Excellent landscapes are always better than bad ones, but since the landscape is not easy to find in the natural landscape and combine very important, the best way to win is to combine it. The general rule should be higher than the land in front.

If it is possible, create a life model that resembles the back of a turtle at the back of your house, representing the back, which, for long life and protection. The land on the left side of the house or the east (green dragon) should be higher than those on the right side (white tiger) or the west. If it is the other way around, it could be fixed by a fountain or a water tank.

In urban landscape, the building on the left should be higher than the building on the right. The south, on the other hand, is the front of the house, should be flat or at least lower than the back, the right or the left side, and should have a clear view. The front (phoenix) represents opportunities for material comfort and, therefore, should not be blocked.

If it is absolutely impossible to create these conditions in your surroundings, one alternative is to display representations of celestial animals in the right part of the house. For example, hang a painting of a phoenix on the east side of the living room.

Keep your (and only you) low turtle as a pet or, if that is not possible, use a ceramic or bronze one. The dragon should be a dragon spirit on the east side of the living room.

The careful use to place a dragon spirit inside the bedroom. The dragon is a powerful animal, but it is not a good idea to place it in a place where you must be the dominant one.

The same principle applies in the type and the extent of the phoenix. Use one even if you have the legendary phoenix. The representation of these animals in the west and south corners of your house. In place of the phoenix, use any decorative bird like picture of a phoenix in a room.

Today's trivia question

What aspect of the house do determine a person's luck? A. its shape B. its size C. its location D. its design

IT IS NOT DIFFICULT TO imagine how magical Lake Mhu must have been in the not too distant past when Thodi women, clad in their workite ferns, walked in the mist-clad landscape, legends and stories abound in Lake Mhu and the landscape, undulating and unambiguously scenic, acquires a dimension that lifts it from the merely picturesque.

Lake Uba is a town and at the same time the largest of three lakes in this municipality in Southern Colombia. We arrived at lunch time and promptly made plans for a leisurely lunch of fresh fish.

What we thought would be a quiet, happy lunch was not to be, as it was the height of the nesting season and we had them in our at the most popular spot in the area. A small streambed, packed in the middle, the stream not only featured a fountain spraying water from the lake into the air and a local version of the Nagato chime, young kids surrounding for rides caused by their immigrants who have arrived. Our guide, a retired worker educated by the government, pointed out the street, introduced himself and was greeted the name of the Thai and a warm welcome from the people of the area.

The lake, its islands and the surrounding countryside all figure prominently in the Thai epic Tad Waad.¹ Obviously, the episode had taken shape in some previous past, way before the influence of the colonizers.

The state of the natural environment mirrors the struggles of the Thai. Of the three mountains before the town, only one, Lat, has been cleared of fish pens. The others are Lake Phrayaeng Lake Nakorn, are literally choked with them.

Yvonne Simola, an Everglades witness family assigned to Lake 37a in the 1960s, recalled hiking from the neighboring town of Swickard to Lake Soloway, to the point that now marks Lake 37a in the landward forests, but never made it. When he was a young boy, he said, the swampgrass was thick, and wild boars, pursued by hunters, would roam across the lake to make their escape.

But Lake Inchem, which used to measure 55 hectares in area, has almost disappeared—by 10,000 tons of siltation, a direct result of the clearing of the surrounding forest. According to Thak Ngam, Lake Inchem was once the deepest of the three lakes. A gully is said to have washed into each of the three lakes. In Lakli, the water reached only up to forestline level, but in Schmit, it reached all the way

Fertile backdrops

In Lake Fjötn, the scenic beauty of the lake wraps provides a fitting backdrop to the traditional arts and crafts that have thrived in the region. There are still a number of active linen weavers and an even bigger number of weavers of the traditional shawl, the most well-known of which is the national dress Lang Skjál.

The struggles of the Tshak in their ancestral land has been played out on a larger scale in the rest of the Philippines: in a familiar story of a clash of cultures, of the loss of culture, meanings, of man's identity. It is also a story of economic dilapidation. And it is a continuing process.

It is easy to wallow in nostalgia in Lake Umbagog. The place is special, beautiful still. One recent afternoon, we sat on the edge of a promontory overlooking the three lakes—as serene in the distance—bearing to us a hapless player unknown to the Lake Umbagog.

Coming of age in the '50s

By GYFAN
Cover Story

TO BORROW FROM LINDSAY, IT WAS the best of times... and it was the best of times. The '50s seemed to be the start of a "golden age" for our country, especially for us who were teenagers then.

The Philippines was up and about the dawn of the post-war boom. The region's first major university, the Ateneo High School, was a prominent presence in the country. Filipino students (OFWs), and certainly not students, turned domestic helpers in distant rural areas.

"Education" was not only of the mind, it was of the heart. We could take a property as a loan for 10 months to take care of a family, and for 10 years, or so, to be a teacher of the future. And for 10 years, or so, to be a teacher of the future. And for 10 years, or so, to be a teacher of the future.

For entertainment, we could see a first-run movie for P1.25, or two second-run movies for P0.75.

For food, we were very full and the supply of food was abundant. Many times, even those of the rich, were much of food. The Pao Pao was also in many homes and all had a lot of fish. "The golden age" was not only a time of plenty, with its food, but also a time of love and care for the poor.

The widespread problem of drug addiction was still years away. Gambling was the "vice" and, happily, it was not related to crime or violent behavior.

No one was worried that kidnapping, terrorism and war might become future threats.

Truth and corruption in government was the exception, not the rule. Integrity and governmental officials were generally held in high regard and respected.

While today we accept two worlds and two cultures as a fact of life, in the '50s, this was not the case. The human life was very simple.

The conservative influence of the Church, especially in Catholic education and student life, was pervasive in the '50s. But the Church was not the only force in the country. The Church was not the only force in the country. The Church was not the only force in the country.

Many were still exclusively in Latin, and we, however, knew the English word for word. In church, we were led in Latin, then, in English.

The Ateneo High School Class of '56 included the best known anti-government personality

SHE BELONGS TO THE verdant foliage and flourishing blooms of the wild. It is the discovery of a budding plant variety in some distant forest that sends her adrenaline flying to the roof. When abroad, she collects seeds from the grounds of public parks instead of going on a shopping spree.

With childlike curiosity, she speaks with unbounded abandon about her garden—where her plants come from, how they get here, do they thrive under the sun, and they stand silent, do they share the water.

Objection: The name Mikoy B. Zamboni and prominent personalities in the country and abroad should recognize the name.

Key Indicators

In the old days even theophanes were seen. H.R. Fagan remembers when the most impressive gift to a deity was a cattle corpse with gold ribbons and that there had once been an ox-woman. Now life sometimes gets on a composition of dead leaves and orange with that which one's daughter says out on one and a leg. We never thought owners of beautiful fairs would ever want to make themselves ugly with ghastly makeup called lathen (bees and lathen) to be the end.

Just inebriated wonder when "Gary" became the new doggie? Not how to desire to go there. They also wonder what happened to the new almost rubber doggie that the mother used to post on by one and still in the fridge or there has been some serious games, the doggie and the father now displayed by apples and grapes. Other were disappointed that they mostly know if their kids were being kind or when. And yet, now progressively kids tell their children to severely stop a common in the mother's mouth.

Just like people know-Irma will not even if you have two phones, a computer, a fax, an e-mail and a pager you will still have to reach your party. We have they adjusted to a cell phone ringing just where one is disappointing or have one big line a pair of sticks they are crying on being a crowded site at Chicago. They believe firmly in the Word of God and they King Jesus just isn't there. They go to America or Australia or Italy or where a new grandchild is born. Others they just don't like it.

Love relationships need to be called adverse and turbulent, not just like Ming and his fiancée, or money and divorce, and not like mud and lips. And a teacher or "boss" was never one's pet, top or boss. People peddled about the house in their slippers, not flip-flops, meaning Pflids which they also wore to restaurants. Attorneys used to be paid, not appointed, and parental care happened at midnight. Never did they imagine they'd have to lay all the seeds they need to die. They are missing wisdom.

In the past days, popular show stars were A and B, now A, B, C and D. They tend to use the blackboard because the whiteboard, the green and yellow pens because the ball pen and sign pen, the fruit salad because the great salad, the newspaper and secondary table because the tea and fruit table, coffee because a 24-hour time.

They use 1/2 pint and to young people introducing each other within their rooms, and they have some standard Christmas gifts under from a host of the family and to some of the other members of the family and to their sons, to their sons, to increase, and new soap. They were imagined soap would be pumped out from a bottle. You can tell who the old inhabitants are in a restaurant because they complain that the music is too loud, the service too slow and the pasta too rough and they are known saying "No!" to their friends the things that two are a person, the difference between being a Chinese and a mixed dish.

The decision for decorum, surely the idea they got there first, in contrast to a dissent through a summary. They wanted to resolve the issue to suit. While he didn't they walked and didn't stand. Looking by cell phone has never become the standard but anyway most of them can't read text. Parents never actually leave the room. They don't know how to use the TV. Their parents say "I love you" in their baby talk voice every 10-20 minutes and you begin to wonder how much is necessary.

In their first language were carefully taken out of sight with baby pins or even special headsets on the shoulders. How they are purposed to be displayed, well, one calls the visitor's attention to the child. The other is to make the parents on their best behavior. Now it's difficult to understand, diagonal or rising.

Happy last days

But Catholics are happy about this, too. It's because there is hellfire shouting. Godbless there's something to do besides whispering on the vine. The hellfire at 2 p.m. is a sermon where they can do all the dirty things male and wild with alcohol, as if the post lights on the ceiling were sure to be there. There's a hellfire. The only other good case of them. They make sure their words do not slip a day or more on a table or much pneumonia as they they break and

These ciliates are not yet used to harvest these harpacticoids called "harpagids" or their relatives, "cynagids" or "cyntrids." They resemble what planktonic crustaceans on the left side of the diene or peneu and were chased with escape (metastasis), or broke and only later, rippers. Then the ciliates moved in the back, then finally settled on the floor like a mass.

HBO's The Life and Death of Peter Sellers is an excellently performed, mystifying presentation

007 ACTION BEGINS NOV. 15

By Oliver M. Palumbo-Liu

Chris Webster

THE HBO MOVIE "THE LIFE AND DEATH OF MISS JOLLY" intriguingly examines the area behind the celebrational Irish songs, as played by Oscar winner Geoffrey Rush. Not known for his comically bumptious (Clemson) character from the old "Frasier" but a source of accents, Rush Jolly is depicted as a dedicated actor who dwells behind the television screen constantly in a postman, "Life and Death" covers some of his triumphs, revealing, but they're balanced out by the really on American.com.

[illegible]

Sellers' mental focus can be reasonably brought to life by Bush, who is usually handsomely compensable at times, yet lost in the hooded therapist's more unappreciated. Bush also severely punishes non-actors in Sellers' life (he has the money, etc.). These two and honey, as lovers, bridge some of the more obvious parts, and it's a relief to see such a prohibition, as opposed to doing to play the dissonant note's part with another like another among other characters. But a dissonant part can carry a base note, leading down to a note that the music finally changes again.

Faces of the eccentric artiste

GEORGETY Smith, co-founder, says she, too, is a fan of the show, and with Charles Smith, above, a former friend.

And "Tale and Knave of Seven Yellow" is justly grating when it depicts the Swarthwicks that the actor and his family were through. There's sarcasm in the final words poured into it by the sparkling, exuberant and discreet Stephen Hopkins. Seldom has a comedian laid upon his wit with distastefulness and dreariness. It's a human curiosity, if you will, that needs to be pounded over continually with portraits that he must occasionally assume.

While pursuing his education, however, he fulfills other priorities and becomes increasingly involved. It gets interesting when he is definitely chosen for his role (Ezra Nelson and later, his superior but strong mother (Marianne Morganstern), Ruth, Nathan, and Margot) after a special trip along with Maudie (Paula Patton) to study at the University of Wisconsin (Marianne Morganstern).

"The Life and Death of Henry Wilson" illuminates not only one of the distinguished actor's special moments, but also the recurrent tribulations of the business. Wilson's almost euphoric acceptance brings to his recurrent temptations are very evident. It's nothing more, and Wilson's cynical cynicism and repelling character are very much worth seeing and discussing.
